Can't wait to see what you can do with this app.

You can use the Charts library for great looking graphs: <https://github.com/danielgindi/Charts>
I have source code if you need to figure it out.

Some items to keep in mind are:

Data entry on the user's part. Try to avoid them having to lots of needless data and keep it simple since they don't want to perform tedious tasks.

Feedback should be relevant and motivating. Try to think of ways to get them excited about opening the app and see their progress. When entering data, maybe seeing the graph rise, fall or animate in some other way.

Some tips or advice occasionally can also keep up motivation. It's hard to keep from buying things sometimes.

A great resource that helped me was Mr Money Mustache. I liked how he showed that you didn't need $10 million to retire and showed that you don't need stuff. He's a bit extreme of course, but even adopting some of his techniques really helps.
